

DEITIES

WITHIN THE REALM OF RAEON, THE WHEEL TURNS indiscriminate. Despite this, there are great, nigh immortal beings that can traverse their ever-turning destiny without a loss of self—a loss of memory.

THE WEAVER OF FATES

Known by many names, the Fateweaver foretold the rise of mankind following the Godsfall. As such, she became the de-facto deity of the majority of mankind. Her temple and majority following are currently based in the Arlaman Empire.

Known only as The Harbinger in this day and age, the once revered deity Umbrasiel was defeated by The Fateweaver on the day of the Godsfall.

THE FLOWER MAIDEN

The beloved daughter of Umbrasiel, gentle Anaya succeeds her father with a destiny entirely her own.

THE FEYWILD, ENVELOPED BY FLOWERS

Anaya's ascension dawned a new era for the elven realm. The many creatures of the feywild have come to adore her, with even the prismatic Emerald Dragons crowning her with their love and devotion.

RAELUN EZRA, THE GOD OF MANY FACES

Lord of Trickery, the God of Many Faces delights in obscurity and discordia. As one of few remaining elven deities following Umbrasiel's demise, his will remains intertwined with the Flower Maiden's divinity.

THAEDROS, THE ALLFATHER

The indomitable prismatic dragon, Thaedros the Allfather is an ancient heroic figure with a vast, unbreakable following. As lord of the skies, he is often attributed with weather phenomena.

THE STRENGTH OF NATIONS

Many look to the skies for The Allfather's approval. He is often associated with Storms, the Seas, and Strength itself. The prismatic dragons of the realm all know him as their god and father, and even the revered heroes of The Ensemble look to him for guidance.

TSUVARA, THE GOLDEN BENEVOLENCE (DECEASED)

Thne most beloved of draconic gods, the golden dragon Tsuvara was said to have fallen to a maddening illness. Her sworn champion sacrificed herself to put the dragon to rest. There is some speculation, however, that the champion's daughter was chosen to carry Tsuvara's divine authority.

AKHASH, THE SILENCE (DECEASED)

Akhash led the silver dragons alongside his concubine, the ancient silver dragon Ardath. The details of his fate remain unwritten, though his title has been usurped by Evaress, The Frostmaiden. It is uncertain if she inherited his otherworldly anti-magic properties, though she has claimed its namesake.

AUTHORITY, DIVIDED

The silver dragons returned to Thaedros upon The Frostmaiden's ascension; however, Ardath remained for an undisclosed reason. Whispers speak of The Silence having been granted to her by her once lover, kept safe within her so as to deny Evaress its devastating power.

EVARESS, THE FROSTMAIDEN

Lady of Silence, Evaress succeeded Akhash. As the brutal, frigid lady of Stostheim, the Sisters of Silence follow her rule with Ardath at their helm.

AZHAN TSUTHAN, THE GRAVELORD

Azhan is a relatively unknown deity, however with a dedicated following. The renowned heroine Lady Cassandra Arsova is his champion. Despite his supposed namesake, Azhan's followers do not refer to him as a god of death.

BEYOND THE PRISM

While many dragons of the realm fall under The Allfather's dominion, the Obsidian Dragons are a kind all their own. With their Prime Matriarch Asharai, they guard The Barrowlands, the resting place of the Gods, with the divine might Azhan bestowed upon them.

KEZETHANE, THE CRIMSON EMPEROR (STATUS UNKNOWN)

The fearsome red dragon Kezethane disappeared several years prior to current day. His authority, however, was given freely to the renowned hero Talon, who was originally Kezethane's champion.

UNACCOUNTED DIVINITY

Given his current high standing in The Ensemble, it's uncertain if Talon is actively searching for his patron.
